Agenda Item 5.

Human Rights Commission - Disclosure

Everyone is welcome to share their thoughts and concerns as we work together to make Moorhead a more welcome and inclusive community. The Human Rights Commission would like to advise those who participate in commission meetings of the Commissions role and authority in the community, as it may influence how we are able to respond.

Persons having human rights complaints are welcome to share their concerns at Commission meetings but must refrain from naming individuals. The Human Rights Commission does not have authority to address human rights complaints and we are not be able to respond directly regarding specific discrimination claims. The Commission is happy to assist with public education about human rights, fairness, equity and inclusion. We may also help direct individuals to resources. However, specific claims of discrimination should be referred to the Minnesota Department of Human Rights where the appropriate legal authority exists.
